Organizator: Sysgenic Group

Sysgenic Group is organizing a new Modern Software Development (MSD) course session. This session is programmed to take place between 19-20th of April 2007, in Targu Mures. The timetable of the courses is from 9:00 to 17:00, and the lectures will be held in English. The course will be sustained by Mrs. Alina Uifalean, authorized trainer of CHF International Romania and USAID, with experience in Software Engineering, Software Process Improvement and Quality Assurance. "Modern Software Development" (MSD) course is a part of Enterprise Development & Strengthening (EDS), a program of the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) implemented by CHF International Romania. Sysgenic Group took part in the program as a trainer ("Training of Trainers") party, with one of its project managers - Mrs. Alina Uifalean. The starting point of the course is a summary of the main problems in development today. The agile methods are presented as potential solutions to these issues and described in a level of detail that allows the attendant to realize which would be more appropriate for his/her case. The first part of the course is dedicated to the most popular agile development methods, including comparisons with CMMI. The second important subject of the course is open source, with the pros and cons, with the alternatives available and the legal issues regarding them. E-mail: office@sysgenic.com Tel: 0265 218 397
